GOP SEEKING TO CUT FUNDS TRUMAN SEEKS

Foreign Arms Program Is Facing Severe Test In Congress

WASHINGTON, July 26—(AP)—Republican backers of military aid for western Europe moved today to cut by more than half President Truman's $1,450,000,000 foreign arms program.

Greeted with a storm of criticism, the President's proposal seemed to have headed the bipartisan foreign policy toward one of its severest tests in congress.

Senators Vandenberg (R-Mich) and Dulles (R-NY), who have taken active parts in trying to keep that policy alive, were obviously irked that the State department had ignored their advice to submit only a token arms program to a congress already fretting about foreign spending.

They felt themselves open to attack from GOP colleagues on the ground that the administration seemed to be making cooperation a one-way street.

Alternative Plan
Nevertheless, the two were reported working with Rep. Vorys (R-Ohio) on an alternative plan. Under it congress might be asked to approve a $77,000,000 outlay to forward $450,000,000 in surplus military equipment to North Atlantic pact signers and make about $200,000,000 more available to buy new equipment for them at home and abroad.

This would be in addition to about $325,000,000 to continue arms aid for Greece and Turkey, the amount the President asked.

Thus the total cash outlay under the alternative plan would be less than half of the total sought by Mr. Truman. He also asked the $77,000,000 for repairing, packaging and shipping surplus supplies along with about $1,000,000,000 for new equipment for eight Atlantic pact signers.

This alternate proposal, just taking shape, represented the first move toward compromising a program that stirred a storm of criticism from both Democrats and Republicans. The criticism was heavier in volume than the approval Mr. Truman's plan got from administration supporters when he formally submitted it yesterday.

As an example, Senator George (D-Ga.), who has gone along on most of Mr. Truman's foreign policy moves, charged that an effort is being made "to stamper congress into quick action."

Gov. Lausche Signs Bill

Revision Of Real Estate For Taxation Is Assured

COLUMBUS, July 26—(AP)—Sweeping revision of real property values for taxation will be required throughout Ohio after 90 days.

That will be the effective date of a new law signed Monday by Gov. Frank J. Lausche. It was among 71 bills passed by the 98th general assembly the governor signed into law.

He still has several major measures under consideration and will act on them before the legislature returns Friday for final adjournment.

The new tax act requires the state board of tax appeals to equalize values between counties, county units or certain classes of property on a percentage basis. Higher or lower valuations can not be set for individual properties.

The state can withhold half its school and other subsidies from counties failing to comply with board orders to equalize appraisals within 90 days.

Rural legislators opposed the proposal. They warned it will result in "more repercussions" than any other legislation passed this session.

Here's what some of the other major measures do:

Exempt publicly-owned vehicles from license fees, a measure sponsors said will save Cleveland thousands of dollars.

Lowers majority vote needed to pass school bond issues and tax levies for construction to 55 per cent at general elections and 60 per cent at special and primary elections.

Allows school boards to submit to voters the question of issuing bonds in excess of the 6 per cent debt limitation.

JAYCEES PLAN YOUTH WEEK

Annual Celebration Is Set For Aug. 22-27 With Full Program

The annual Junior Chamber of Commerce Youth Week will be held from Aug. 22-27, according to plans made last night.

Chairman of the Jaycee Youth Week committee is William Keck. Assisting him in making arrangements are Walter Minth, Frank Diehl and Richard Wilkinson.

The annual ball trip for the teen-agers is planned for that Saturday when the youths will attend the Cleveland Indians-New York Yankee game. Admission to the games is free for the youths and they must register at a time and place yet to be announced.

President James S. Jackson said today that cars and drivers are needed to transport the expected large group. Free admission is available to the drivers. Everyone interested in driving is urged to contact Jackson at 4300.

Plans for the Civic day, when Salem boys will participate in city government, and a dance at the high school, will be announced later this week.

Barden Bill Endorsed By United Church Women

A concerted effort was made Monday evening by the Salem United Council of Church Women to seek a better understanding of controversial federal issues.

It was agreed, at the well-attended meeting in the Presbyterian church, that women, as voting citizens, should acquaint themselves with the Taft-Thomas bill for federal aid to education and with the much-discussed Barden bill.

This bill, introduced by Rep. Barden of North Carolina, prohibits use of federal funds for any services to private and parochial schools. The Council went on record as favoring this bill.

Letters and telegrams will be sent to representatives and congressmen to this effect.

Mrs. J. C. Pottorf, president of the council, introduced Mrs. E. S. Scott, who explained the bill, and Rev. Harold L. Ogden who amplified the subject under discussion.

Baruch Says European Nations Too Dependent On U.S. Aid

(Editor's Note—Elder Statesman Bernard Baruch believes that Marshall plan spending must be tightened to force western Europe to help itself instead of looking to America for aid. Baruch, returning from a European tour, feels that American workers and industry are being taxed far too heavily to support nations which have not made an all-out productive effort themselves. He explained his views in a five-hour "informal" conversation aboard the liner Queen Mary with John Diefhard, political editor of the Chicago Herald American. This special dispatch, radioed by Diefhard, summarizes the views of the influential financier and adviser to presidents.)

By JOHN DIFHART
(Copyrighted, 1949, by the Chicago Herald American)
ABOARD THE S. S. QUEEN MARY, July 26—(INS)—Bernard Baruch, American financier and adviser to presidents, returned to the United States today with a gloomy view regarding the effectiveness of the Marshall aid plan.

Baruch is convinced that the billions of dollars poured into financially-distressed nations have helped neither them nor the interests of the U. S. taxpayer as much as could be expected.

That is his conclusion after spending a month in England, France, Holland and Belgium, and conferring with such leaders as Winston Churchill (who in a Saturday night speech accused the laborite government of "squandering") nearly eight billion dollars of American and Canadian aid.)

Baruch believes that the loans or gifts to western Europe were not sufficiently conditioned upon European nations helping themselves regain their pre-war economic stability.

As a consequence he found that peoples abroad are not being required to produce to capacity and that their governments have not made uninaugurated moves to improve business.

In short, both peoples and governments have come to look to America to keep them going, Baruch feels.

Baruch was not willing to be quoted in a formal interview because he now regards himself as a private citizen and because of the continuing conferences abroad of such figures as W. Averell Harriman, the Marshall aid plan roving ambassador, U. S. Ambassador to London Lewis Douglas, and Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder.

It is clear, however, from his conversations with him, that Baruch believes that while some good has been accomplished America could have saved billions of dollars if the whole program were evaluated and new loan conditions imposed.

Cites British Example
He found in England, for example, that the country could balance the budget if 40 million more tons of coal were produced annually; instead miners are working a short week.

Further, Baruch expressed interest in the fact that Britain has 14 billion dollars in frozen pounds sterling which is not being employed to improve its financial situation.

In his opinion France appears to be recovering rapidly, but though in deadly fear of Russia and Germany the country is not requiring full production of raw

Population Gain In U. S. Shown

WASHINGTON, July 26—Civilian population in United States increased by 192,000 persons in May to a June 1 total of 147,434,000, the Census bureau estimated today.

The increase since Jan. 1 was placed at 971,000 and the increase since the last official census in 1940 was 16,032,000.

Total population of the United States, including armed forces overseas, was estimated at 148,902,000.

RECORD CORN SUPPLY SEEN

Wheat Stocks Expected To Be Smaller This Year, However

WASHINGTON, July 26—(INS)—The nation is headed toward the largest corn supply on record, but wheat stocks are expected to be smaller than last year.

This is the opinion of top agriculture officials after viewing the government's latest figures on grain supplies for July 1.

Corn stocks are reported at their highest levels for that date in seven years of record keeping—one billion, 239 million bushels. This is expected to dwindle to about 800 million bushels by Oct. 1, when the new harvest begins.

A carry-over of that size plus a prospective new crop of three billion, 530 million bushels would boost the year's total supply to an unprecedented four billion, 330 million bushels.

What's more, the corn carry-over on Oct. 1, 1950, probably will be larger still.

During the year beginning Oct. 1, no more than three billion, 300 million bushels are expected to be exported or consumed at home. Compare that with the supply and it's obvious that before long at least a billion bushels of extra corn will be lying around.

With wheat, officials say it's going to be a slightly different story.

July 1 stocks totaled 293 million bushels—50 percent larger than for that date last year but far from a record.

An expected crop of one billion, 189 million bushels will give the country a supply of only one billion, 482 million during the next 12 months, compared to one billion, 484 million bushels last year.

First Airmail Hop Made From Salem

At 9:20 this morning the first airmail flight, directly from Salem to Washington, D. C., got underway, with more than 1,000 special first-day covers in the postoffice airmail pouch. The letters will be cancelled in the capital's post office.

Virgil Edgerton piloted his Cessna 120 for the flight, with Dwight Getz, post office clerk, who made arrangements for the flight, as passenger.

The two-place plane left from the Salem airport, east of town, and was expected to arrive at the Washington, D. C., National airport about 11:30 a. m. After delivering the first-day covers to the postoffice for cancellation, they will take the letters back to the plane and return to Salem. Edgerton expects to arrive here about 4.

MORE ARRESTS ARE MADE IN WIDENING QUIZ

15 Men Jailed In New York To Cincinnati Gambling Probe

NEW YORK, July 26—(AP)—A three-state roundup of an alleged $50,000,000-a-year numbers racket ring—which juggled the figures to cheat the players—widened with more arrests today.

Six men were booked here shortly after dawn, following all-night questioning by District Attorney Frank S. Hogan and aides.

Nine persons were arrested yesterday in New Jersey and Cincinnati, and two were seized here previously.

The cheating was done by manipulating the reports on the daily totals of the Cincinnati, Ohio, Clearing House association.

Juggled Figures
Dennison Duble, secretary of the association, was reported to have admitted he had juggled the figures for a year and a half so that the players' normal 1000-1 chance of winning would be reduced enormously.

The Cincinnati bank clearing figures were a factor in determining the winning numbers on which suckers in many states bet their pennies, dimes and dollars.

One of the prisoners, Anthony Strollo, alias Tony Bender, was described by New York County Attorney Frank S. Hogan as "one of the top underworld figures in the east."

Strollo was arrested yesterday in Cliffside Park, N. J., as the three-state crackdown hit. Duble, who was arrested in Cincinnati, will be brought to New York to face charges.

Seven persons were arrested in Newark, N. J., after New York and New Jersey officers raided the alleged headquarters of the racket in a fashionable home.

Three of the Newark prisoners were held in bail of $100,000 each. One of them is the occupant of the raided house, Daniel Zwilman, a cousin of Abner ("Longy") Zwilman, a prominent prohibition era figure in the Newark area.

Two men were arrested July 12 in an "initial raid" in Staten Island, the district attorney said.

How It Works
A numbers player selects a sequence of any three digits—such as 237 or 999 and puts his bet on that for the day. With the odds 1000-to-1, the payoff was only 640-to-1.

The raided ring's winning number was made up this way, in order: The second and third digits from the noon Wall Street bond figures and the second digit of the Cincinnati clearing house daily total.

A member of the ring obtained the first two figures from the Newark branch of the financial firm of Kean, Taylor and Company, Hogan said, but there was no suggestion that the company was involved in the racket.

After obtaining the first two digits of the number on which the ring would have to pay off, its mathematicians figured out what third digit would cost the ring the least in payoffs.

That's where Duble came in, according to authorities.

Hogan said the Eastern wing of the ring notified the confederate in Cincinnati, who provided the selected third digit in the right place in the clearing house total. Thus many players were gypped by a rigged number, and they never knew it.

The district attorney here said the complete business figures from which the numbers were taken, were printed in the New York Mirror and New York Journal American. Hogan said the newspapers offered to discontinue printing the figure, but he asked them to keep on until the authorities completed their 18-month investigation.

Is John L. A Monopoly?

Though there are no personalities on the spot in the senate banking and currency committee's investigation of the coal industry, John L. Lewis will dominate the proceedings.

Investigators are looking for the answer to a question that has been asked so many times it's part of the American language: Who does John L. Lewis think he is?

He has more power than any other individual in the coal industry. On several occasions he has challenged the government itself to bring him to heel in a showdown affecting the public welfare. He is subject to none of the ordinary controls created to deal with concentrations of power. By comparison, the most powerful concentrations of wealth and management skill are peanuts, because Mr. Lewis can paralyze every user of coal, if he so desires. Moreover, he can set the price of coal by regulating the amount produced and the conditions under which it's produced.

These things are well known. But they will be reviewed by the senate banking and currency committee anyway. One other thing that's well known will be ignored by everybody but a handful of minority members—that if it weren't for the Taft-Hartley act, which Mr. Lewis wants repealed, he would be under no restraint whatever.

Hard On Groundlings

All who yearn, foolishly, to know what the future holds should take note of a substantial clue which appears regularly in the news.

Airplanes will be as common as automobiles are now, and so will mishaps which grow out of the use of airplanes. For example, two fuel tanks from a jet plane crashed in La Jolla, Cal., a few days ago. They held 165 gallons of kerosene apiece. A number of La Jollans who might have been killed now have their own firm idea about one thing the future holds, and they aren't happy about it. Only a few days before the jet-tank incident—a whole airliner crashed into a row of houses in Seattle.

There will be an increasing number of airplane accidents which will involve not only passengers but groundlings—the pedestrians of aviation. Huge planes will mow down habitations. Falling parts will thud into the earth, narrowly missing lucky groundlings but hitting others fair and square. Insomniacs will have a hard time preserving their sanity from the roar and whoosh of traffic overhead. There will be agitation to build heavy steel nets over all closely populated places, at taxpayers' expense. The perfect hide-away of the future will be hole deep in the ground, to which a man may scurry when things on top get too dangerous to bear any longer. People yearn for the good old days when all they had to fear was something simple, like the automobile.

Down-Payment On Security

President Truman's foreign arms program sets the first-year down-payment on military aid at $1,450,000,000. This would be followed by other payments, of amounts to be decided from year to year. The proposed program for foreign arms aid is nothing more or less than a permanent lend-lease system. Whatever one may think of it, that's what it is.

The United States is making progress in candor. In World War I, it fooled itself by calling its help for other government "loans." In World War II, it called its help "lend-lease." In its effort to avert World War III, the United States is giving away its resources. There is no longer any wishful thinking about getting the money back some day.

No one has any real idea how much this will cost, or whether it will do what it's expected to do. But the United States will spend at least $7,000,000,000 during the next 12 months for its "fire insurance." That represents minimum requirements only; the beneficiaries all could use more.

As in all other kinds of spending, there is no point of satiety—no point at which everybody agrees that further spending would be useless. Though the hope is that governments in Europe—and other beneficiaries outside Europe—may be able to stand on their own feet eventually, the probability is that they never will stand on their own feet as long as American dollars are forthcoming.

Nor will Americans at home who benefit from the spending of such huge sums of public money be likely to stand on their own feet either. The merest hint of cutting back peacetime lend-lease is the signal for warning Washington that thousands of voters may be deprived of their livelihood. It is not unlike a plan of international blackmail in which the sucker must pay and pay and pay. However one happens to feel about the justification for military aid, for economic aid, or for any of the ways in which the United States buys security with its wealth, this is only the beginning. A down payment of more than $7,000,000,000 in the next 12 months will be only one drop in a bottomless bucket.

Credit Taft With An Assist

The "big three" in the steel industry acted wisely in finally accepting President Truman's plan to create a special fact-finding board to study the dispute over contract terms with the CIO's United Steel Workers.

The top firms had held out on the ground that the proposal represented an attempt by the President to by-pass fact-finding machinery called for by the Taft-Hartley law.

But this position looked pretty weak after Senator Taft, a sponsor of that controversial law, declared that he believes Mr. Truman has the power to set up a special board.

Whether or not the President may have had political considerations in mind when he avoided use of Taft-Hartley, the steel companies owed it to the public to go along with any fair proposal that would avert a serious strike in a time of receding business activity.

WHILE affairs of all character are destined to move into new grooves and under particularly high tension or excitement, yet disaster or an unlooked-for or unplanned denouement could be brought about by too ardent, reckless, unorthodox or ungoverned urges or impulses. While romance and high adventure spur to vigorous action, possibly in fresh pastures or in strange avenues of accomplishment, yet disruption might follow rash or ill-considered moves, in private and business relations. Prudence, forethought, regulated urges could produce spectacular results.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, are on the brink of a particularly dynamic exciting course of events, with novelty, adventure, far fields and curious fancies, bringing thrilling and spectacular culminations, both in private life and in major business alliances. But an impulsive, wayward, erratic or tempestuous mode of action could prove devastating and disruptive, with the best of plans or opportunities blasted by a whirlwind of untoward events, unforeseen and unpredictable. With composure, studied plans and regulated emotions the finale might be thrillingly productive and joyous. Count the cost before plunging into wild hazards through erratic drives.

A child born on this day will be valiant, ardent and possessing exceptional ingenuity and originality, may jeopardize its rare opportunities by eccentric, reckless or temperamental urges.

Guarding Your Health

By DR. HERMAN BUNDESON

CERTAIN skin disorders which commonly afflict children are highly contagious. They spread rapidly from child to child until an entire group is infected unless the disease is recognized in its first victim and steps are taken to separate him from his schoolmates.

One such condition which parents should be able to identify promptly is impetigo. Its first manifestation is a rash of skin blisters. These blisters break and form crusts or scabs which may vary in color from yellow to red. They may be more than an inch across, but they are usually smaller. The skin of the face, ears, neck and, often, the hands are affected. Sometimes the disorder develops in the scalp. As a rule, it causes no itching, burning or pain.

Due to Germs

It is thought that impetigo is due to germs which are normally present, to some extent, on the skin of all persons. The germs get into the skin where the surface is broken due to a scratch or cut. Picking the face with dirty fingernails may lead to the development of the condition.

It is often noted that impetigo may develop in a child with a discharging ear. Frequently several children in the family are affected if they use a common towel of washcloth, or play together.

In preventing impetigo, cleanliness is important. Children should be taught not to pick at the skin and every child should have his own towel, washcloth, comb and brush. One attack of impetigo is no protection against future occurrence of the disease.

Proper Treatment

Fortunately, this condition can be promptly cleared up with proper treatment. Ointments of ammoniated mercury are frequently helpful. During the first few days of treatment, the child should be kept at home and away from other children in order to prevent the disease from spreading.

There is another form of impetigo which occurs in infants, particularly those in newborn nurseries. In this disorder, as a rule, the blisters break and leave raw surfaces; scabs do not form. Epidemics of impetigo can quickly spread through the nursery; hence, it is important that the first case be diagnosed early and properly treated.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. F.: I have pouches under my eyes. What causes this?

Answer: Puffiness under the eyelids frequently comes from lack of rest and sleep. The disorder may be due to some disturbance in the water balance of the body. Some individuals have tissue which holds more water than others, and it is this collection of fluid in the body which causes puffiness under the eyes. There is no need to worry about this matter, for the condition can cause no trouble.

The Nation Today

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON, July 26—(AP)—President Truman, taking the next step in the cold war with Russia, asked congress Monday to vote money for arming western Europe against Russia.

This will intensify the argument that's been going on for months about the arms program. It's already so intense there's a question whether all, or any, of it gets congress' okay this year.

There is no real disagreement between President Truman's planners and congress on this big point: The spread of Communism and Russia's power must be blocked.

The disagreements have always been on how to do it and how much needs to be done. And that's at the heart of the present disagreement about arming western Europe.

Last week the senate, after full debate, overwhelmingly voted for our joining the Atlantic pact. By joining it, we have agreed that:

We will go to the defense of the western European countries, who have joined with us, if they are attacked. Russia wasn't named as the only likely attacker, but Russia was meant.

We weren't being unselfish in this agreement. The countries of western Europe are our friends. We need them badly to stand off the push of Communism.

But they might not have the will to resist Russian pressure without this assurance from us that we'd stand beside them in any crisis.

Now western Europe, through the Atlantic pact, may have the will to resist Russia. But does it have the ability? That is, does it have the arms to stop an attack?

That's where the argument over Truman's arms program begins. He thinks our allies need the arms, and plenty of them, from us.

Critics of his program think our allies don't need the arms in the amount, or as fast, as Mr. Truman requests, or they say that arming Europe might actually bring on war instead of preventing it.

Some of them suggest we send only a token amount of arms at this time and wait until the allies' military experts, including ours, figure out precisely what is needed and what will be done with it.

They raise this question, too: Suppose one of our allies is taken over by its own native Communists. Then it will ally itself with Russia and the arms we sent it can be used against us.

The supporters of Mr. Truman's program argue this way:

To stand up against a Russian attack until we can swing into full scale war effort, western Europe needs arms. It doesn't have them now, although it may be able to produce enough for itself within some years from now.

So the problem of arming Europe is immediate. Unless we send the arms, western Europe may doubt our sincerity in saying we'll help at all.

Land and sea breezes are caused by differences in temperature between adjacent land and water areas. These differences are due to the fact that land areas take on heat and cool off with greater rapidity than do water areas.

Taft Drive Begun
By Illinois Solon

WASHINGTON, July 26—(AP)—A "Taft-For-President" drive was started in the house today by Rep. Mason (R-Ill.). He predicted that if senator Taft is re-elected in Ohio next year "nothing can stop him from becoming the Republican presidential candidate in 1952."

"That means 'Bob and Martha' would occupy the rebuilt White House," Mason added in a speech prepared for delivery.

Mason said Taft's leadership in the 80th congress and his actions in the 81st "have placed him head and shoulders above anyone else."

"Bob Taft may have neither mass appeal nor political color," he added, "but he does have what it takes, brains, guts, and integrity—qualities altogether too scarce today in legislative halls."

Mason predicted that "more money and effort will be expended in Ohio against Taft than will be expended against all other senatorial and congressional candidates combined." That's because, he said, "the labor bosses would rather defeat Taft than all other members of congress."

HOLLYWOOD—Milton Berle had three movie cameras focused on himself for his opening scene in his Warner movie, "Always Leave 'Em Laughing."

The picture will be released this winter as Hollywood's secret weapon to stop people from looking at Milton Berle free on television and paying to look at him in movie theaters.

Berle pointed to the three cameras and whispered: "I'm bringing television technique to Hollywood but don't tell anyone about it except your readers."

"We'll have three cameras on every scene in the picture to catch the spontaneity. That's the way I do my TV show. That's the way we're doing the picture."

Mrs. Milton Berle—Joyce Matthews—was among the first-day spectators. I asked her about her re-marriage to Milton.

"Really," she said, "we didn't give it much importance. We never stopped going around with each other after the divorce. It was just one of those things."

Milton was chuckling over the reissue of his Fox movie, "Tail, Dark and Handsome," in New York. Fox just remade the film as "Turned-Up Ties" with Keenan Wynn in Berle's role, and the remake will be playing competition to the reissue.

Hollywood has been predicting that Berle's weekly video show will soon be running out of material.

"Sour grapes," said Milton. "As long as there are people there will be new acts. I can go on for 20 years."

Humphrey Bogart would like to borrow his wife for his leading lady in his next independent, "In a Lonely Place," but doesn't think Warner Brothers will okay the deal. It's a Hollywood story, with a frustrated writer as the hero.

That's Bogart. Much of the action will be filmed at Mike Romanoff's Beverly Hills restaurant. Romanoff gets a role and so does his bulldog, Confucius.

Hollywood has launched a subtle campaign against television in a King Vidor's crack. While looking at a video show, he said: "Not only will this kill pictures and radio—it'll kill television as well."

First telegram of congratulations received by Nora Eddington and Dick Haymes after their marriage was from Nora's ex, Errol Flynn. He wished them luck but the telegram didn't say whether he meant good or bad.

I watched Kirk Douglas and Doris Day in a love scene. First the cameraman measured the distance between their noses and then Director Michael Curtiz didn't like the scene, sat down in Doris' place and put his head on Kirk's shoulder, showing Doris how to flutter her eyelashes. Movie love is mechanical—not inspired.

No argument about Marilyn Maxwell being the most popular gal with the M-G-M-males for the next week. She plays a bubble dancer in "Key to the City" and wears a skin-tight, flesh-colored outfit with a couple of balloons at strategic places. It's the best double feature in town.

Exclusively Yours: Jane Russell and Mae West in the same movie.

It's Mickey Rooney's idea for a satirical western, "The Nerve of Kelsey," in which he would play a Texas Ranger. He has writers working on the story and agents talking to both Jane and Mae.

Hollywood has been talking about trick casting as an antidote to box-office blues, but that one tops 'em all.

Greer Garson got a family as well as a husband when she married Buddy Fogelson. He has two teen-age sons by his first wife. The marriage received so much front-page publicity in Fogelson's home town, Dallas, that a local theatre immediately dug up and ballyhooed one of her old films, "Blossoms in the Dust," which had a Dallas background.

Lou Costello still can't return to work until October following his serious illness, but he's taking short walks daily around his home.

Photographs of Clark Gable in a Little Lord Fauntleroy suit, for a costume ball sequence in "Key to the City," won't be released until just before the picture opens. They should get more circulation than that famous wartime pin-up picture of Betty Grable.

LADD FOR "DETECTIVE"? PARAMOUNT laid $250,000 and a percentage on the line for the Broadway hit, "Detective Story." But it still isn't definite that Alan Ladd will do the Ralph Bellamy part. Alan is penciled in for another western "Montana Rides."

The "No Visitors" signs are up on all stages at Fox following a parade of 1321 gawkers in three days. Set of Bob Hope's film was closed, too, because the visitors were interfering with production. But when he got the order from the front office, producer Bob Welch cracked:

"Let's not tell Hope. He loves visitors."

John Lund will be Betty Hutton's leading man in "The Mack Bennett Story." Lund continues to amaze Hollywood with his normalcy. He's Paramount's hottest new star, but never acts like one.

Billy Wilder spotted him on the lot in blue jeans, faded shirt and tennis shoes. "Why don't you dress like a movie star?" asked Billy.

"Why," said Lund, "what's wrong with this?"

Lo, the poor cigar-store Indians. A female—Joan Davis—is in their midst. Her new radio sponsor is a cigar manufacturer.

She'll be featured in full feathers on all the firm's advertising.

SECOND-CHOICE HOPPY NOW it can be told dept.: Bill Boyd was second choice for Hopalong Cassidy when the series started back in '34. Harry Slierman tried to get Jimmy Gleason for the part but Gleason wanted too much money. I still can't understand why some studio doesn't grab Bill now for a big technical western as a result of his tremendous success on TV.

Sight: Lucille Ball, red hair flying, driving on Vine street in a new powder blue convertible with powder blue upholstery.

Overheard: Feminine tourist to Gary Cooper: "You're so tall." Cooper: "That's because you're looking at me sideways."

Paramount sent a camera crew to Bing Crosby's Elko, Nev., ranch to film a trailer for "Top o' the Morning" and came back amazed at the vastness of the place. He runs 33,000 head of cattle and last year shipped out 150 tons of hay. Bing and the boys are up there now.

Princess Rebukes Guards As Rowdys

LONDON, July 26—(INS)—Britain's Princess Elizabeth "pulled her rank" Sunday on officers of the swank Grenadier guards.

The princess, who is an honorary colonel of the ultra-social regiment, rebuked ungentlemanly officers for unbecoming conduct at their annual dinner which she attended.

In effect, the heiress to the British throne wrote Lt. Col. E. H. Goulburn, commanding officer of the Grenadiers, that it's not polite to heckle and interrupt after dinner speakers—even if they become a bit boring.

Col. Goulburn admitted there was "overlaid joking and shouting" at the dinner but denied there was any actual rowdiness or hooliganism.

Nevertheless, the Guards club committee sent a letter to all officers who attended the dinner saying:

"The committee wishes to draw attention to the fact that the dinner has become increasingly boisterous since the war."

"It is a great honor that her royal highness, the colonel, attends the dinner. It would be a disgrace to the club if she should have any doubts about attending in the future."

TIFFIN MAN LOSES 40 LBS. WITH RENNEL

"I cannot say enough for what Rennel has done for me," writes Mr. D. S. Ladd, Box 805, Tiffin, Ohio. "I am 67 years of age. Since taking Rennel I have lost 40 lbs. and feel so much better."

It's simple. It's amazing, how quickly one may lose pounds of bulky, unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this recipe yourself. It's easy—no trouble at all and costs little. It contains nothing harmful. Just go to your druggist and ask for four ounces of liquid Rennel Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Then take two tablespoonsful twice a day. That's all there is to it. If the very first bottle doesn't show the simple, easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender, more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't just seem to disappear almost like magic from neck, chin, arms, bust, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles, just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow the easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Pole Perching Housewife, Angry At Rowdies, Stays Up

REVERE, Mass., July 26—(INS)—Jean Ellis, the pole-perching housewife seeking a home, let it be known today from her roost atop a 50-foot pole at Revere beach that she is angry at the rougher element among her admirers.

But the people who scoff at her

GE HEAD WARNS AGAINST HIGH WAGE PAYMENTS

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., July 26—President Charles Wilson of the General Electric Co., said today that the present slump in buying is not serious but could reach "disastrous" proportions if labor costs increased through higher wages.

But he said that General Electric is not advocating a reduction in wages at this time.

"Increased labor costs" Wilson told company stockholders in a quarterly message, "would force prices up again, narrow the market and put some real iron in the public's decision not to buy what we have for sale. The inevitable result would be further curtailment of production and employment."

Wilson noted that General Electric had opposed previous rounds of wage increases because of inflationary effects, but said that for the present the company was not calling for a wage cut.

"So long as there is a fighting chance for us to overcome the adverse psychology of this market and make our adjustment to decreased demand in terms of lower costs and harder selling, we feel that wage rates should not be lowered," he said.

Wilson told the stockholders that "we are not readjusting permanently downward. We are readjusting from a period of abnormal growth to one of normal growth and expansion."

Wilson's message accompanied payment of General Electric's 208th dividend. It was 50 cents a share of common stock.

pole perching as a "publicity stunt" for the amusement area, are the ones that really have Jean fuming.

The 24-year-old mother of a little daughter vowed she would show them and stay on her perch until next winter, if necessary.

Now in her 14th day on the pole, Mrs. Ellis is sticking to her story that she's up there to dramatize her plight in the housing shortage. She said she'll stay up until she gets a house to rent at a reasonable price.

Troubles Start Early
Her troubles began early today. At 4 a. m. a reporter dashed up to find out if she really was staying aloft all night. She paid no attention to his shouts. Her husband, Arthur, 36, came out of a nearby ticket booth, about six by four, where he is sleeping fully clad to be close to his young wife.

Jean soon appeared atop the pole, and didn't seem to mind the interview. It gave her a chance to air a few grievances.

For one thing, some of the late-night audiences are rowdy. Some boys thought up the trick of crowding around the pole and pushing it in unison until she was swaying as if in a storm-whipped tree.

Also she complained about the tossing of pebbles at her canvas-shielded perch.

And she had a few anxious moments from the jokers who tried to set fire to the base of the pole by igniting wads of paper. That's why Arthur is sleeping close by. A recent rainstorm brought Jean her greatest headache. She is hoarse and nursing a bad cold.

A doctor came to the foot of the pole and consulted her by shouts and wig-wag. That didn't help her sore throat much.

Arthur Sore, Too
Arthur joined his wife in being sore at the rowdy jokers. He said:

"I was against this stunt before, but after seeing people throw stones and toss cigarette butts at the wooden pole, I am sick and tired of their reactions and I'm burned up at them for trying to make fun of her."

"She doesn't have to be up there. I'm an interior decorator, in business for myself.

"And another thing. We've had only two offers for housing since she went up there. One required us to care for an invalid, and the other was a free lot of land provided I put up a $9,000 house. We're looking for a rental at reasonable figures."

HARVARD STUDY ABSOLVES SWEETS AS DECAY CAUSE

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor
NEW YORK, July 26—(AP)—New Harvard tooth decay experiments challenge the prevailing belief that sweets, by making mouth acids, are a foremost cause of tooth decay.

The Harvard work indicates that only about one-fifth of decay is due to conditions in the mouth, such as the acids which nourish the germ, lactobacillus acidophilus, that is one cause of decay.

The rest of the causes, as seen in this new work, are internal; that is, what doctors call systemic. These studies were made on hamsters, rats and mice by Reidar F. Sognnaes, Ph. D., of the Harvard school of dental medicine. The nutrition foundation financed them.

Tried Two Ways
It was found almost impossible to cause tooth decay in these animals by excessive eating of sugar, yet under two circumstances sugar caused a lot of tooth decay.

The sugar failed to do tooth harm when fed to adult animals, but when fed to mothers of unborn animals, the young had bad teeth. And when fed to the young, before their teeth developed, a high sugar diet again resulted in bad teeth.

Dr. Sognnaes said it still is not clear why the high sugar diet affected the young animals, nor was it even a certainty that the sweet was the cause of these bad teeth.

He explained that the high sugar diets were also highly purified. This means that they contained everything known to make a perfect diet for the animals, but with no added impurities.

Some minerals in very small amounts would be missing from a purified diet. Dr. Sognnaes said that although these trace minerals were not necessary for good health of the animals, it still cannot be said they play no role in sound teeth in the young.

"STORM CELLARS" KEEP POWDER DRY

Oklahoma's Ammunition Depot Ready For War Use By Navy

McALESTER, Okla. — (UP) — Huge "storm cellars" at a 70-square-mile ammunition depot near here are keeping the Navy's powder ready for immediate use in any war which may cloud America's future.

The sod and grass-covered underground magazines, miles and miles of them, are only part of the naval ammunition depot facilities here. The $75,000,000 depot makes new ones, besides storing them for future use.

The depot, activated on May 20, 1943, employed 8,400 persons to make ammunition at its war-time peak. Employment now has been cut by 80 per cent but the payroll still averages $364,000 monthly.

A Marine guard still keeps strict watch over the base. No smoking is permitted, canvas sneakers are worn to keep sparks from flying from shoe nails and any irregularity brings Marines running.

Like Farm Cellars

However, it was not security camouflage tactics that caused magazines to be built like storm cellars where farm wives store their canned fruit. The Navy's reason was the same as the farm wives'. The underground cellars, heavily insulated by their dirt covering, keep powder warm in winter and cool in summer.

Although the magazines generally are first to catch the eye of civilian visitors, the depot is packed with other installations. A machine shop area big enough for a couple of large factories, homes for officers, permanent barracks, mess hall for Marine guards, railroad yards, piles of equipment and completed ammunition, water and electrical systems big enough to supply a good-sized city also are visible at the huge arsenal.

To southeastern Oklahoma, the depot is more than a sign of preparedness for war. It is also a new lease on industrial life in peacetime.

McAlester businessmen worked hard to bring the Navy depot here. Now, they find they got more than just a government project.

Navy officers like Capt. V. R. Roane, depot commandant, praise the central location, good transportation facilities, availability of labor and security in case of attack.

McAlester finds the depot and its personnel's endorsement the best selling point possible for bringing other industries to this area.

Petitions Signed On Ballot Question

COLUMBUS, July 26—Secretary of State Charles Sweeney said today more than 95,000 petitions have been issued to place the Massachusetts ballot question before voters in the November election.

Sweeney's office started last week on an initial order for 100,000 petitions. A supplemental order for 60,000 more was made later.

A dozen extra clerks are working overtime to prepare the petitions. A group of Cleveland and Toledo sponsors are behind the movement. It has Republican endorsement.

The Massachusetts ballot lists all candidates for each office in a separate box on the ballot. Ohio's present ballot lists the candidates of each party for the various offices in a single column.

A single "X" at the top of the party column now is a vote for all candidates in that column.

The Massachusetts ballot makes it necessary for voters to place an "X" beside the name of each candidate they prefer.

HELICOPTERS AND PARACHUTISTS HELP FORESTERS FIGHT FIRE WITH FLIGHT

By DOUGLAS LARSEN

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—The U. S. is prepared to meet this summer's forest fire threat through the air.

There are two aerial weapons against fires that blacken and destroy or forests—"smoke jumpers" and helicopters.

The U. S. Forest Service has been developing the technique of dropping men in parachutes to fight fires for 10 years. Its corps of 300 expertly trained men is always ready to be flown to practically any part of the country. They constitute one of the most efficient outfits of their kind in the world.

These smoke jumpers spearhead all of the paid and volunteer efforts which are marshalled when a big blaze is first discovered. Because they can reach the scene so swiftly, many times just a few of them can get a fire under control which otherwise would destroy millions of acres of valuable timber.

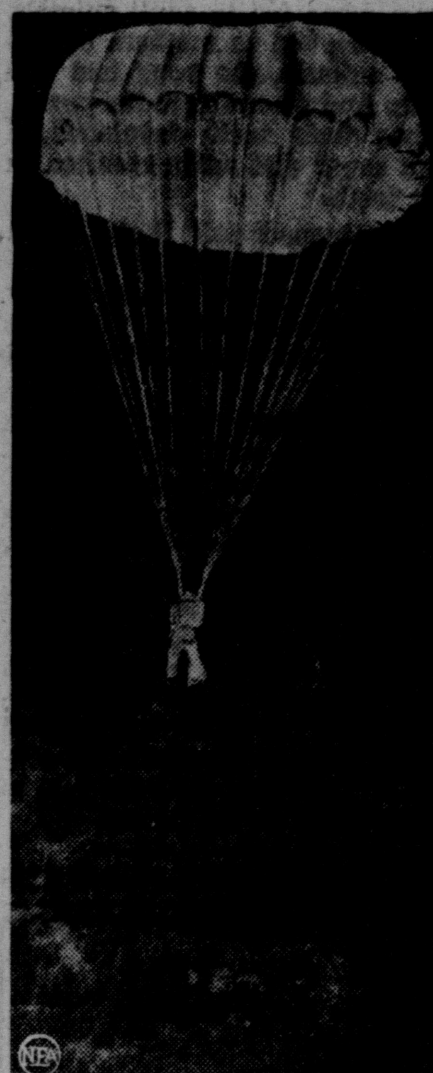

Although the work is extremely hazardous, the equipment which is now provided for them has kept injuries resulting from the drop itself almost negligible in past two years. The actual fire fighting and the possibility of being surrounded by a wall of blazing trees are the dangerous elements of the game. Each man is heavily padded, wears steel leg guards, has his face protected with a heavy iron screen and his head covered with a tough helmet.

He carries with him specially-designed picks, shovels and axes, plus a quantity of explosives, first aid equipment and food.

The helicopter has come into use more recently but it has many advantages in fighting forest fires. First, it serves as a sort of aerial command post for the person directing the activities. Hovering over the fire, he can see which way it is headed, where it is most dangerous and where a concentration of effort would be most effective.

It can be used to get men and equipment from one spot to another quickly. Once a smoke-jumper has bailed out, he is committed to that particular spot, regardless of whether the fire should become more serious in another spot. The helicopter can also evacuate men when a fire threatens to surround them. Keep the fighters fed and supplied with equipment when they are in action, and get them back to hospitals quickly when they are injured.

Although the Forest Service has had more than 700 hours of fire fighting experience with helicopters, it owns none. It has to charter them from private companies when they are needed. Usually, during a dry season, when there is an alert, the location of all helicopters in the area will be determined before-hand and they will be kept on a stand-by basis.

The bright spot in the forest fire picture for this summer is the giant snowfall which paralyzed the West and Midwest last winter. Fortunately—for the forest threat as well as the fire hazard—the snow melted slowly. Instead of running rapidly off the ground into the rivers as it melted, it seeped gradually into the ground.

This factor has kept the forest fire danger in the U. S.—except in the East—from developing faster than normally. But any kind of a drought in the Western or Midwestern states, comparable to the one which hit the Atlantic coast, could quickly wipe out this temporary advantage. Forest Service officials warn.

Rural Phone Service Increased During 1948

In a recent bulletin, issued by the Ohio Bell Telephone Co., it was disclosed that more than 750,000 rural telephones were added in the firm's territory during the period January, 1946 to December, 1948.

On rural jobs last year 10,243 poles were added, 7,000 miles of wire strung and $3,500,000 spent; 17,168 telephones were installed, a gain of 15.2 per cent.

DO BATS HATE? THEY DON'T CARE PROFESSOR SAYS

SAN FRANCISCO — (UP) — One of the most popular misconceptions about bats is that they are mad at people.

Bats don't care about people, yet their prime enemy is probably man.

That and a wealth of other hitherto little-known facts about bats are the result of a study into every phase of the life of the bat made by Dr. Robert T. Orr, professor of biology at the University of San Francisco.

Dr. Orr, in his studies over a two-year period, observed his bats under every condition. Because of their stand-offish, nocturnal habits, the little mammals with a 14-inch wingspread had to be trapped and brought into captivity before much study could be made.

Hibernation Studied
Orr had special cages built to study their hibernation activities during the winter. He placed the bats in a refrigerated room with the temperature constant between 40 and 50 degrees.

The bats were given no food for four and one-half months. They suffered no ill effects. It was found they lost approximately 25 per cent of their body weight, but gained it back in about four weeks when hibernation ended.

It was discovered, however, that the bats did need water and humidity during that time. They wake up every few days and seek water. Orr learned this by placing sand on the floor of the refrigerated room and found fresh bat tracks on the floor.

It was found also that bats must hibernate in a locality where the temperature is constant. If the weather turns suddenly warm, they awaken and swarm out to look for food. But in winter the insects which bats thrive on are scarce and many of the bats die.

Life Span Uncertain
Female bats give birth only once a year and their babies are born feet first, comparable to human birth.

"The life span of the bats has not been determined yet," Orr said.

Some of his bats are three years old and are still well. "But in the east," he added, "bats have been reported at 13 and 14 years of age and still going strong."

The bat's prime enemy probably is man, Orr said, and that seems to be true only in this part of the world. In the Orient bats are considered omens of good luck.

Part of Orr's research was done during a night's stay in a bat cave in San Louis Obispo County. "The bats didn't make any attempt to attack us," Orr said. "In fact, they did their best to stay away. Bats are smart animals."

AVIATION NOTES News of Activities of Salem Airmen, Local Flying Fields

When Robert Eckert of Homeworth and Clete C. Wilhelm of Alliance joined the 92-plane Ohio tour over the weekend they had a surprise passenger in Mrs. Kathryn Baumer of Cleveland.

She reportedly spurned a week end of pinocle to join owner-pilots in the three-day tour sponsored by the Cleveland Junior Chamber of Commerce. She told her women friends that after a number of commercial airline trips she was going to try the smaller planes.

The aerial gypsy caravan makes stops at various Ohio airports where local Jaycee organizations are hosts to the fliers.

Don Stirling, owner of a service station on W. State st., soloed in an Ercope Saturday at the Salem airport, east of Salem. He was the first student to solo under the new instructor and manager, Joe Steen.

Frank Tanzer, operator of Frank's tavern, also soloed in an Ercope Saturday at the airport.

Attended Flying Farmers Meet
Don Starbuck of R. D. 4, Salem and Virgil Edgerton of R. D. 1, Salem, each took their wives and planes to Columbus Saturday for the Ohio Flying Farmers convention.

The convention was held at the Ohio State university Don Scott field with approximately 50 planes and 150 people present.

Starbuck's plane is a Taylorcraft and Edgerton flies a Cessna 120. Both planes are moored at Edgerton's landing strip west of Salem.

In Ohio Air Tour

Participating in the Ohio Air Tour this weekend, from this area, were Mr. and Mrs. Russell Miller of North Benton, Robert Eckert of Homeworth, Clete C. Wilhelm and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Sherman of Alliance.

Miller operates an airport and flying school at North Benton.

Aviation Board Visit

The staff at the Salem airport was very happy this weekend after a visit from C. A. Brown and Burwell of the Ohio Aviation board of Columbus. They visited the airport Saturday afternoon. According to Earl Grate, field operator, they expressed surprise and appreciation for the progress made in aviation in this area.

They were pleased to hear the first air mail flight from Salem would be made soon and offered their assistance in further promotion of aviation in and around Salem.

American Negroes Don't Fare Badly, Editor Decides

By ROBERT BRANSON
NEW DELHI — (UP) — An American Negro editor says a trip from Washington to India has convinced him that color discrimination is harsher in the United States than most other countries, but that American Negroes are "mighty fortunate" even so.

P. L. Prattis, executive editor of the Negro weekly, Pittsburgh Courier, explained that during a 6-month tour of Europe, the Middle East and Asia, he found "no place where there is more active, open prejudice against human beings on account of their color than in the United States."

Prattis, who had lunched earlier in the day with Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, leaned back in an armchair in his room at one of New Delhi's best hotels. It was a big, comfortable room with electric fans and a thick carpet.

Living Good in U. S.
"You think I could get a room like this in Washington?" he asked. "I have been to no capital of any country which practices the discrimination you find in Washington."

On the other hand, Prattis said, as far as living standards were concerned, American Negroes were "far better off" in general than colored people he had met abroad.

"From the economic point of view, the United States is the best country with the best future for the Negro," the editor said. "Wages are good and there's plenty of food for everybody. You certainly can't say that about most of the places I've been."

Prattis said he had found Nehru "a very impressive man."

Nehru Sincere
He talked mostly about the hunger and low standards of living in India," Prattis said. "But it wasn't just high-sounding politician's talk. He sounded as though the problem really hurt him, and as though he would give everything to solve it."

Prattis said Nehru apparently was "a great admirer" of Paul Robeson, and wanted to know when the Negro singer was going to visit India.

"He said Paul had been promising to come out here for 11 years," Prattis added.

Since he left Pittsburgh last January, Prattis has visited England, France, Germany, Italy, Greece, Egypt, Israel (at the invitation of Dr. Ralph Bunche) and India.

"52-20" Club Provisions Of GI Bill Are Ended

WASHINGTON, July 26—(AP)—The "52-20" provisions of the G. I. Bill of Rights, under which $3,600,000,000 has been paid in jobless benefits to 8,770,000 World War II veterans, expired last night.

Seven bills were introduced in the 81st congress to extend or even increase these benefits, but only one has even reached the point of committee approval in congress.

This one, which would extend the unemployment pay but not benefits for those customarily self-employed, was approved unanimously by the senate labor committee last week. However, senate action on the committee recommendation is not in sight.

Federal Funds To Schools Approved

WASHINGTON, July 26—(AP)—Legislation permitting use of $35,000,000 in federal health funds in private as well as public schools was approved late yesterday by a house commerce subcommittee.

The bill is similar to one already passed by the senate, but the subcommittee added several amendments described as minor by members.

The bill will come before the full interstate committee probably later this week.

It is not the same aid-to-education bill which has precipitated a hot controversy over use of federal funds for private and parochial schools. That bill, also passed by the senate and providing for $300,000,000 in aid to states for education is stalemated in the house labor and education committee.

The bill approved by the commerce subcommittee contains none of the features which have caused Catholic leaders to assail the $300,000,000 measure as discriminatory.

However, it has an indirect bearing on the general measure offered by Rep. Barden (D-N.C.) which set off the religious controversy.

Prattis said Nehru apparently was "a great admirer" of Paul Robeson, and wanted to know when the Negro singer was going to visit India.

"He said Paul had been promising to come out here for 11 years," Prattis added.

Since he left Pittsburgh last January, Prattis has visited England, France, Germany, Italy, Greece, Egypt, Israel (at the invitation of Dr. Ralph Bunche) and India.

Farm Legislation Still Active Topic

WASHINGTON, July 26—(AP)—Two senators—both farm operators—predicted today the senate will insist upon action on long-range farm legislation at this session of congress.

They are Senators Thye (R-Minn.) and Young (R-N.D.), both members of the senate agriculture committee.

Commenting in separate interviews on house action in extending the present farm support program through 1950 and voting to repeal the Aiken farm bill, they said the senate will write its own bill.

"The farmers would wind up in a tragic situation if the only security they had was in one-year extension of the present support program," Young said.

"There seems to be strong sentiment now in the committee to amend and clarify the 1948 Aiken act to have the supports run from 75 to 90 per cent of parity," they said.

REP. VORYS URGES ARMS FOR EUROPE

WASHINGTON, July 26—Rep. Vorys (R-Ohio) said today he will urge that the United States either provide arms to European nations to back up the Atlantic pact, or withdraw Marshall plan aid.

"One is of no value without the other," Vorys told a reporter. "We should have both."

He is a member of the house foreign affairs committee which will consider the administration's arms-for-Europe legislation.

The Ohioan said he considers the Marshall plan just half of a program to guard against any Russian aggression. The arming of friendly European nations in the North Atlantic pact is the other half, he added.

Vorys said he disagrees with those who would withhold arms from friendly European nations, but who are willing to promise that the U. S. would fight to defend them against aggression.

Your gasoline dollar

*buys one of the world's great values
...and saves you 10¢ a gallon today*

Gasoline Prices

1921 PRICE (NO GASOLINE TAX THEN) 29¢

1949 PRICE (EXCLUDING 4¢ GAS TAXES) 19¢

YOU SAVE (ON SOHIO X-70 GASOLINE) 10¢

IF YOU THINK in terms of prices after World War I compared with after World War II, you are saving 10¢ every time you put a gallon of Sohio X-70 gasoline in your car.

And, if you are an average car owner, this will amount to a saving of $60 in a year!

What a great value today's Sohio X-70 gasoline is, too. It is many times better than the 1921 kind, better than the 1940 kind—in fact, the best regular gasoline money has ever bought.

It comes to you cheaper because the oil industry, in spite of higher crude prices at the well, has been constantly making economies in processing, in service and in transportation. A large part of the company's profits have been put to work buying equipment that benefits its customers.

So, as long as you are saving a dime at Sohio, why not put that dime away? Try putting a dime in a bank for every gallon of gas you buy—and think of us as you do it. Your Sohio dealer will be glad to give you a bank like the one pictured next time you drive in for gasoline.

The STANDARD OIL Co. (OHIO)

Sorry!
MOST OF THE DIME BANKS ARE GONE

A week ago Sohio offered free Dime Banks to keep your gasoline savings in. Most of our service stations were out of them in a few days. However, it's a good idea to keep on saving the dimes you save today when you buy SOHIO X-70.

JOHNNY APPLESEED LEGEND RECALLED

As Another Crop Starts to Ripen Two Versions
Of Story Retold

WASHINGTON—(UP)—When an estimated 100,000,000 bushel apple crop ripens next fall in the nation's orchards, the legend of Johnny Appleseed will be remembered as the story of a man who dedicated his life to planting apple trees in the American wilderness.

John Chapman, the historic original of Johnny Appleseed, may not have been so unselfish, according to the National Geographic society. The known facts about him are that he was born on a farm in Leominster, Mass., shortly before the American Revolution, that he attended Harvard college for a short time, and that he emigrated to the Ohio-Illinois frontier around 1801. He died in Fort Wayne, Ind., in 1845.

The less romantic version, the society said, describes Johnny as a go-getting business man, who saw in the rapidly-growing number of emigrants to Ohio and Illinois an opportunity to capitalize on the lack of fruit trees in the fertile free land across the Ohio river.

Built Thriving Business
He collected apple seeds from western Pennsylvania cider presses to start nurseries at points along the wagon trail from Pittsburgh to Illinois. By selling or bartering his young trees to the emigrants, John Chapman built a thriving business, leaving a small fortune when he died.

But, as the society says, the other and more enduring story of Johnny Appleseed tells how he became a devotee of the mystical doctrines of Emmanuel Swedenborg while a student at Harvard and traveled west as a missionary-philanthropist. Armed only with a Bible and a bag of apple seeds, he became a minister, not only to the spiritual but to the physical health of the pioneers.

According to the legend, he carried on the work of propagating apple trees because he knew the worth of fresh fruit in preventing scurvy among the settlers during the years of clearing, plowing and sowing before the first harvests were reaped.

That is the traditional Johnny Appleseed of poems and ballads, a frontier myth as dear to American hearts as Paul Bunyan and Buffalo Bill—a small, wizened figure, traveling barefoot and unarmed, recognized as a friend by Indians, even by wild animals.

Pushed Into Wilderness
That is the Johnny Appleseed who pushed farther and farther into the wilderness ahead of the wagon trains, who planted his seedlings near streams and other likely spots for the cabins of the settlers who were to come, and who accepted food, money or goods for his trees only to help others in need.

He gave his seeds to all who asked, pressing them on those who did not ask. His seed packets and the seedlings from his trees outstripped him, as he grew old, in the wagons that rolled on across Iowa and Kansas and across the Rockies to the Pacific, to flourish in the favorable climate of Washington and Oregon, the great orchard states of the U. S.

How close or how far the legendary Johnny Appleseed is to the historic reality, no one knows. But the Johnny Appleseed who is honored at Fort Wayne, Ind., in apple blossom time, at Leominster in apple-picking time by monuments at Fort Wayne and Ashland and Mansfield, O., is the benevolent wanderer who planted apple trees in the wilderness from simple love of his fellow man.

The most important enemy of the jack rabbit are coyotes.

Wingless Chickens Are Hits in the Laboratories, But, in the Past, They've Been Flops in the Pot

PURELY SCIENTIFIC interest in wingless chickens was that of Dr. R. T. Renwald. He developed wingless strain, like this one he holds in 1932, then turned his notes over to a student.

Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK—(AP)—So you're coming to visit New York this summer for the first time?

And your ailing rich uncle has not died yet and left you his money, so you have to travel on your own skinny pocketbook? And you want to know whether anybody can come here and have fun on a small budget?

Brother, at least 7,000,000 of the people who live here will tell you "yes"—with some qualifications.

You can do it if you have a real curiosity to see and know as much as you can of this circus too big to put up under canvas. But if your idea of heaven is to sit in plush supper clubs night after night—why, better wait until your uncle dies.

The best things in New York—its wonderful window displays, its famous streets, its great stores, its history-crowded museums, its skyscrapers, its tremendous views—cost little or nothing to see. And the people, the fabulous people of this fabulous city, they are the best show of all—and free.

But there is a time to see things best. Go at the right time for each.

Go out to Coney Island on a steaming Sunday and see humanity on the half shell. That is still the New York that O. Henry wrote about. And so is the Bowery and Chinatown—and the edge of Greenwich village. It's best to see them at night, and the subway will take you to any of those places for a dime.

But let's start at the beginning. When you get off your train or bus, treat yourself to a cab ride to your hotel. If you don't know a good, clean reasonably-priced one, ask the hackie. Unless you give him the idea you're just in from Fort Knox, Kentucky, he'll OMAHA, Nebr.—(NEA)—Wingless chickens are stirring up a lot of excitement these days following the announcement of their breeding by a Des Moines, Iowa, veterinarian, but around here wingless chickens get the bird.

First, there's nothing new about them. As far back as 1924, people were successfully developing a wingless strain. In the second place, they turned out to be less meaty than the normal be-winged variety.

Records show that in 1924 W. L. Frank of Sherman, Tex., developed a wingless chicken. He called it Kiwi, after a wingless New Zealand bird. He even started a Kiwi Club of America, but not much came of it.

Just 20 years ago, in July, 1929, NEA Service carried a story about Dr. R. T. Renwald, an Omaha veterinarian. His interest in wingless chickens was entirely scientific, although he did prophesy that "within five years" wingless poultry would be as common as the normal strain. Further, he said the wingless ones laid more eggs and, consequently, he forecast the price of eggs falling to around 10 cents a dozen.

His theory that the wingless hens would be eggier was based on the knowledge that ordinary hens have an idle period of about 15 weeks when their wing feathers moult. No wings, no wing feathers, no moulting, no idle period, he figured.

His wingless hens did lay up to 315 eggs a year, which is better than normal. But after the experiment, he turned his breeding records and notes over to a graduate genetics student who wanted the information for a master's thesis.

In 1934, a wingless rooster was born as a freak of nature in Rose Hill, Ky. Scientists of Princeton University got hold of the bird, steer you straight.

Even though your budget is tight you can still work it so that you eat at least once in a big-name restaurant, see a Broadway play and take in a fine concert. Timing is important in these things too.

Go to the restaurant at lunch. The prices are usually scaled lower at mid-day—and you are just as likely to see a celebrity there. Hit the theatre boxoffices half an hour before curtain time. At all except the top musicals or "Death Of A Salesman" you'll probably be able to pick up a pair of tickets. "A Streetcar Named Desire" is now advertising good seats available for all performances, and my wife says it's the best play in town.

If you're a music lover, you can listen to some of the world's best talent at evening concerts under the stars at Lewisohn stadium. And the prices, tax paid, range from 30 cents to $2. Major league baseball isn't too high. Go to see the Dodgers play at night—then you won't have to add the cost of a bottle of sunburn lotion to the price of your bleacher seat.

Don't fail to go up to the top of the Empire State building. Take a trip through Rockefeller center. See the Rockettes in the Radio City Music Hall. Ride the ferry to Staten Island and enjoy the greatest view and the longest over-water ride on the globe for a nickel. All are good buys.

But walking and gawking are the finest fun here if your arches are strong. Stroll through the garment district any week-day at noon; Wall Street, deserted on a Saturday afternoon; and Times and watched it develop. They concluded, after X-rays and psychological tests, that it was a pleasant creature, but would be useless in the pot.

PURELY FOR EATING are these wingless chickens—a rooster and hen—developed by Peter Bauman of Des Moines. He claims the wingless birds will make better eating, but some people contradict him.

The breast muscles of birds, which are the largest source of white meat, are their wing pullers. Since "Wingless," as the erudite Princetonians call the freak, had no wings, he needed no wing muscles. Hence, "Wingless" was also breastless. All he had to offer for dinner were drumsticks, back and neck.

The current wingless breeder, veterinary Peter Bauman of Des Moines, claims the grounded chickens would develop tremendous, luscious drumsticks, since they do so much walking. Not so, answers Frank E. Mussehl, chairman of the poultry department at the University of Nebraska.

"Take away the wings and soon you will be getting wingless runts," he says.

He thinks that, without wings, the chicken is liable to become thin and lean. He, like the Princeton poultry pros, knows that the wing muscles are what make the wings so thick and tender.

Of course all the pro and con clucking about white meat and drumsticks ignores one large segment of Americans—those who like wings.

As for Dr. Renwald, he's as mildly amazed at the new excitement as he was over all the publicity he got back in 1929. And he's still eating chickens with wings.

LISBON BRIEFS

Lester E. Brown, seaman, USN, son of Mrs. John Funk of R. D. 3, Lisbon, is scheduled to arrive at Annapolis, Md., July 25, from Portsmouth, England, after a 15-day stop at Guantanamo bay, Cuba, as a crew member aboard the battleship USS Missouri.

Two final important tips:

(1) Don't change any $2 (or $20) bills for strangers.

(2) When in doubt about anything, ask a cop. If you can't understand him, ask again. He may be from Brooklyn.

The antelope jack rabbit lives chiefly in Mexico and a short distance north of the border.

FARM NEWS OF LOCAL INTEREST...

PRODUCTION OR DESTRUCTION?

It was July, 1948. The sun was shining brightly; the birds were singing. Yes, it was a beautiful day. Dad hitched the tractor on the combine and started to the field. Just as dad started down the lane, little Gerald, age 5 years, came running through the barnyard, got dad's attention, and asked to ride along.

"Sure you can ride," said dad, "but you have to be careful." Well, apparently Gerald didn't know how to be careful. As the tractor entered the gate to the field, the wheel struck a large stone and threw Gerald beneath the combine. They buried Gerald three days later.

Are farm people in Ohio involved in many tractor accidents? In 1947, 35 farm people in Ohio were killed while operating farm machinery; three-fourths of these involved the tractor. During the same period approximately 7,500 sustained non-fatal injuries from the mis-use of farm machinery.

It has been said that "familiarity breeds contempt." Familiarity may also breed carelessness. The longer we operate a machine, the more inclined we are to overlook some of the common hazards which are always present.

Perhaps Henry H. Hill, superintendent of schools, Lexington, Ky., was right when he said, "We have too many safety illiterates."

Hill defines a safety illiterate as "a person 16 years of age or older who does not know and practice the common-sense rules of safety." If every tractor operator in Ohio would use "horse sense with horse power" many of the accidents would be prevented.

This is National Farm Safety week.

Quality Milk Essential

One of the features at the annual Dairy day of the Wooster agriculture station on Aug 12 will be an exhibit of materials and equipment necessary for the production of quality milk.

The essentials in producing quality milk are healthy, clean cows; clean stables and milkers; clean, treated utensils; and prompt and efficient cooling. A demonstration in the proper cleaning of equipment will also be given at Dairy day.

Reforestation Tour

The Columbiana County chapter of the Ohio Forestry association is sponsoring a tour of reforestation work in the southern part of the county tomorrow for members and the general public.

The meeting will start at 10 a. m. at Frank Pancake's forest nursery, two miles south of Negley on Route 170 from where the group will go to some of W. H. Vodrey's plantations thence to the Beaverkettle farm of Mr. Vodrey. The meeting will end between 3 and 4 p. m.

Grape Growers Tour

An important tour to all grape growers will take place near Vermillion on Aug. 10. Sponsored by the Ohio Grape Growers institute, the program will start at 9:30 a. m. at the farm of Ed Haber on Route 60, 1/2 mile south of Vermillion.

Beef Cattle Day

Almost 1,200 cattlemen and their families attending the Beef day at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment station at Wooster July 19 heard Sam R. McKelvie, director of the American Hereford association, tell how cattlemen can aid in maintaining economic soundness.

In speaking on "The Rancher and the Feeder," McKelvie said, "we must operate our plant with regard for progressive production practices and in accord with popular demand for our product. We must obtain more economical gains. The breeder must carefully select and mate his animals to control the type of cattle he produces. Our industry needs to acquaint the public more fully with the facts of our business."

Paul Gerlaugh, in charge of beef cattle investigations, reported on feeding studies underway with small, medium, and large sized Hereford steers. The animals used in the test were on display in the Frye barn and have just finished a test after being on full feed for .225 days. The project is sponsored in cooperation with the American Hereford association and involves not only full fed calves but also calves of three sizes which are on pasture at present.

Wise Burroughs, of the animal science department, gave a report on a protein supplement test underway at the station. This study contains 10 lots of steers on a protein supplement ration.

Included is a comparison of soybean oil meal with various combinations of soybean oil meal, meat scraps, alfalfa meal and urea.

Believes Daughter Killed By Japanese

LOS ANGELES, July 26—(UP)—Aviatrix Amelia Earhart, who disappeared on a round-the-world flight in 1937, "died in Japan" on a secret U. S. government mission, her mother said today.

Mrs. Amy Otis Earhart believes her daughter landed on a tiny atoll and was picked up by a Japanese fishing boat that took her to the Marshall islands, then controlled by the Japanese.

"I am sure there was a government mission involved in the flight because Amelia explained there were some things she could not tell me," the white-haired octogenarian said. "I am equally sure she did not make a forced landing in the sea."

The aviatrix disappeared July 3, 1937, while flying from Lae, New Guinea, to Howland island. Japanese officials took her from the Marshall islands to Japan, Mrs. Earhart believes.

"There she met with an accident—an arranged accident that ended her life," she said. "I hoped that she might be returned to this country during the war in exchange for some captured Japanese general or admiral but I gave that idea up after the war ended."

A steam engine was first used to operate the bellows in an English blast furnace in 1775.

American League Race Tightens After Latest Indian Win

TRIBE CUTS LEAD TO THREE GAMES, BELT YANKEES 4-2

Lady Luck Sitting In Indian Dugout, Says New York Writer

NEW YORK, July 26—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians are hot on the trail of the league leading New York Yankees.

The Tribe's hair-raising 4-2 win last night closed the gap between the teams to three games. They do not play today.

A phenomenal touch of lady luck's hand has helped the scrapping Tribe in recent games. The Bombers must have seen her sitting on the Cleveland bench last night because they played ball like nervous schoolboys.

Three of the Tribe's runs were unearned as they defeated the Yankees for the first time in five tries. An error, a passed ball, a wild pitch, and at least two mechanical blunders by the Yanks cost them the game.

And then there was that lovely touch of luck.

The score was 4 to 1 for the Indians going into the Yankee eighth. Early Wynn, who had allowed the Bombers eight hits and had stifled them in the pinch was tiring. After Phil Rizzuto and Tommy Henrich singled to open the inning, Manager Lou Boudreau took the ball and waved for "the ancient man."

Satchel Paige trudged in to face Joe DiMaggio who had singled twice. Little time was wasted. The Yankee Clipper caught a Paige fast ball and drove it deep to left center. In Cleveland the ball would have been out of the park to tie the score. But Thurman Tucker reached back to gather in the fly and Rizzuto trotted in with only one run.

In the Yankee third, Raschi singled with one out and raced for third on George Stinewiss' similar hit. But the pitcher never reached the bag. He stumbled rounding second and was thrown out, Larry Doby to Ray Boone to Joe Gordon before he could scramble back.

Rizzuto doubled to left to score Stinewiss but another rally was squelched.

A break or two helped the Tribe at the plate, too.

In the fifth, Dale Mitchell tripled with one out. Tucker topped a roller to Bob Brown at third, but Brown played hot potato with the ball and Tucker was safe, Mitchell holding third.

A fly by clutch hitter, Mickey Vernon scored Mitchell and Tucker advanced to second when Doby singled to right.

When Catcher Gus Nairhos let a Raschi pitch get away, Tucker scooted all the way home for the second run of the inning.

The Tribe got a legitimate run in the third when Boone and Jim Hegan singled, Wynn sacrificed, and Mitchell lined to DiMaggio, Boone scoring after the catch.

A single by Boudreau, a sacrifice, a grounder and a wild pitch accounted for the Tribe's fourth run in the eighth. Boudreau got two of the Tribe's 11 hits.

It was Wynn's eighth victory against two defeats. Paige retired six straight Yanks after relieving the hefty Alabama man in the eighth.

The Indians now have won five straight and if they don't lose their horseshoe, they may win indefinitely.

A GREAT SHOW FOR SALEM

Salem is tentatively in line for its most outstanding sports show. The program, which won't be held until December or January, will have a line-up of speakers that should leave local sports fans goggle-eyed.

Although plans are far from complete, here is the picture: In a talk with Salem Amvet officials Saturday night, following his appearance at the Saxon anniversary dinner, Mayor James A. Rhodes of Columbus suggested the show. Extremely active in sports circles, Rhodes has many contacts with outstanding speakers and offered to bring several of them to Salem under Amvet sponsorship.

Here are the people he plans to bring: Fritz Howell, sports editor of the Ohio Associated Press; Billy Southworth, manager of the Boston Braves and an Ohio resident; Hank Gowdy, old-time major league catcher and the first major leaguer to enlist in the armed forces in World War I.

Otto Graham, sensational quarterback of the Cleveland Browns; Riley Wilson, another former ball player, who is reputed to be the greatest of all story-tellers.

In addition, Rhodes will be on hand. He is no slouch at spinning yarns himself, as witnessed by the big hit he made when he spoke at a recent Amvet party.

"We'll put on a two hour show that will have people talking for the next 10 years," Rhodes said Saturday. "You can definitely count on the show as soon as football season is over."

Of the tentative speakers, only Howell has appeared in Salem. He was guest speaker at the Salem News all-county football banquet in 1946. He is rated as one of the most humorous after dinner men in the business.

Rhodes said he wanted to line up a list of speakers that will appeal to every sports follower. He added that he wants to also get a top golfer for the benefit of the linksmen.

The program is expected to be the finest thing of its kind ever scheduled here. The Salem Boosters club has had several top-notch speakers in the past, but never had occasion or opportunity to have four or five at the same time.

From here the Rhodes-Amvet show appears to be the warm spot of a cold winter.

FICKLE FANS
We are constantly amused and amazed by the overnight changes in the local fans' loyalty to their pets, the Cleveland Indians.

Without offending the true-blue followers of the Tribe, who never waver in their devotion, a few comments are deemed necessary.

The balance of the Indians' devotees in Salem seem to be delicately balanced on the fence, poised for leap in either direction. On one side of the fence lies the Tribe's second consecutive league championship and a World Series. The other side, where one can jump in case of the ultimate ignominy of a second place finish, seems to be getting plenty of consideration, too.

The trend coincides perfectly with the Indians' current performances. In the event they are on a four-game winning streak as was the case Sunday, everything is bright with all concerned. Phrases such as "We're a cinch," "How can they beat us," and "I knew they'd come through all the time" are heard in front of every newspaper, radio and television set in town.

But, friends, when they take two in a row on the nose from the thoughtful Yankees, it's different matter. Then there occurs a scurrying to safety that can only be compared to rats leaving a sinking ship.

The conversion of Indian fans to Yank or Red Sox rooters by the populace is tremendous when Boudreau's charges get taken.

But if the Tribe manages to win in '49 (gulp!) you are hereby guaranteed that you won't encounter one individual that was not "sure of it all the time". It happens every year.

RITCHIE PITCHES ONE - HITTER FOR 1-0 WIN FROM E. F.

Two Games Washed Out: New Third Round Schedule Out

It appears that Dale Ritchie is back in his 1946 stride. The China twirler, who tossed a no-hitter last Friday, came back Monday night and fired a one-hit job at the Electric Furnace, winning 1-0.

Ritchie, who is the oldest pitcher from point of service in either league, led the China to the city championship last year, but hadn't been too effective this season—until the last two games.

The China was able to collect only five hits off Furnaceman Marshall Sutherin, but they got that all-important run. The victory tightened the China's grip on third place in the National league and pushed the Furnace down deeper into fourth.

Meanwhile, the leaders, the Bliss Co., pounded out an easy 9-3 victory over the hapless Igloo nine. It was the fourteenth consecutive win for Ralph Long's men, who haven't been beaten since the first two tilts of the year.

Wayne Russell gave up seven hits as he coasted in. Harold Ogden swung the big stick, collecting three for three. Papadakis and Ingledue each had two hits for the Igloo.

In the American league two second division clubs settled matters at West End park before the rains came. The Sweteye combine topped the Saxons 10-4, with Mitchell twirling five hit ball for the winners.

Don McCoy had three hits in four tries for the Sweteyes, while Bill Zeck notched two for three for the Saxons.

Both the Diner-Jaycee and C.I.O.-Lisbon tilts were washed out in a heavy rain. They will probably play Wednesday night.

Joe Kelley, league manager, today released a third round schedule. The list of games is speeded up, with two games at Centennial park each night. The schedule will conclude on Aug. 22 in plenty of time to begin the Shaughnessy playoffs.

Locke Out of All Tourneys Save Open

NEW YORK, July 26—(AP)—The Purse strings of America's lucrative golf tournaments were closed today to Bobby Locke but the bush-browed South African may still get a crack at U. S. pros in the National Open.

The U. S. Golf association, which runs the Open, said last night it had taken no move toward following the PGA action in banning the cool money collector from across the Atlantic.

This seems to be a matter strictly between Mr. Locke and the PGA," a USGA spokesman said. "We have not been asked to enter into it and until we are Mr. Locke naturally will be eligible for the Open."

The Open is the blue ribbon event of American golf, worth only $2,000 in immediate cash to the winner but of infinite value in prestige.

But the rest of the U. S. gold dust tournament trail, from which Locke picked up more than $50,000 the last three years, is blocked to the British Open champion.

George Schneider, tournament manager of the Professional Golfers association, announced the ban yesterday in St. Paul.

He said the reason was that Locke "has on numerous occasions violated the PGA tournament regulation and the tournament player's agreement of the PGA of America which he signed."

Locke's entry, he said, "will no longer be accepted in any PGA sponsored event." That's all the big money ones except the Open.

The act that apparently blew off the lid was the South African's late withdrawal from the Inverness matches at Toledo last weekend.

Locke complained he had received "disgraceful treatment" but said he was turning the matter over to Commander Robert C. T. Roe, secretary of the British PGA.

Roe's only comment was: "I am sorry this thing happened. Now I will have to write some letters."

The 32-year-old British Open titlist cancelled a Thursday plane reservation to America and prepared to play in the Irish Open at Belfast. He had intended to compete in the Tam O'Shanter at Chicago, Aug. 5.

Large Softball Card Set For All-Star Benefit Night

Although the Salem softball all-star game is only nine days away, only two ballots have been turned in by league managers who are to select the teams from American and National league.

The applications, listing two choices for each position and a choice for manager are to be given to League Secretary Bob Dixon this week.

League Manager Joe Kelley has arranged an interesting slate of games for all-star night, Wednesday, Aug. 3.

In the leadoff spot at 6:30 p. m. he has scheduled a three-inning girls game, featuring the Salem Red Caps and the South Side Sunoco nine.

The teams have played several games this year and asked for the privilege of appearing on the program.

At 7:30 Kelley has booked an Old Timer-Class B All-Stars tilt which packs plenty of interest.

The Old Timer team will be picked by Kelley and will include players who put in 20 years of play each in local loops. The Class B squad will be chosen by league umpires.

The All-Stars of the American and National loops will play in the feature game. Contrary to the established trend, local all-star games have been exciting frays of late. Two years ago at Kelly stadium the two leagues staged one of the best games of the entire season, with the American league winning out.

Proceeds from the ticket sale for the game will go into the league's medical fund, which has become depleted. According to Kelley, only $110 remains in the fund, with eight claims from injured players still outstanding.

There was no benefit held in 1948 for the fund.

Tickets for the game are on sale with all league players.

Stock Cars To Race At Canfield Track

CANFIELD, July 26—The roaring hard tops (modified stock cars) will hold another big event program at the Canfield fairgrounds speedway Wednesday night. The last two programs held here have been of the knock-down, drag out, variety and thoroughly enjoyed by the fans.

Gays Biro, of Peninsula, Ohio, and the cowboy of midget racing circles, who tangled with Neal Carter in the feature event of the midgets last Saturday night, will be one of the many entrants of more than 20 for Wednesday night's program. Biro should feel right at home in these hard top events as he drives best when being bounced around by his competitors.

These races are held under the sanction of the Ohio Racing association of Toledo, Ohio.

Wednesday night's program will find many of the midget drivers trying their luck and skill in one of these "hopped up" semi-stock jobs.

Merchants Win 8-7 In 12-Inning Tilt

Two runs in the last of the 12th gave a well-deserved victory to the Salem Merchants over the Mechanicstown Merchants 8-7 at Centennial park Sunday. Both teams notched 12 hits.

The visitors got a run in the top of the twelfth, but Salem came back to ice the tilt in the same frame.

Johnson twirled for Salem and fanned eight.

7 Licking County Granges 'Dormant'

COLUMBUS, July 26—(AP)—The Ohio state grange disclosed today that seven of the 24 granges in Licking county were considered "dormant" because members refused to pay dues.

Property of the seven will be taken over by state grange headquarters to be held in trust pending reorganization of the granges, State Master Joseph W. Fichter said.

The refusal to pay dues resulted from activities of a group of grange members dissatisfied with Fichter's administration.

The dissidents have threatened to seek Fichter's removal. They scheduled a meeting last Saturday night at Laylin, Licking county, but cancelled it.

Their explanation was that a committee assigned to gather evidence against Fichter had not completed work.

Fichter meanwhile denied that state headquarters had taken action to force Newark grange 1004, one of the seven non-paying groups, to turn over bank books and $450 in government bonds to his office.

Under grange law, he said, the property automatically comes into the possession of the state office.

Grange 1004 has filed suit at Newark to recover the bankbooks and bonds which, it alleged, were surrendered to the state grange master by Secretary Melliss Orr and Treasurer Monte Orr.

The suit was filed by Attorney E. Clark Morrow, who said he represented James L. Willoughby head of grange 1004, and his executive committee.

The controversy began several months ago when Fichter appointed Desoo Pipes as deputy master for Licking county to replace Clyde Bone. Bone's partisans accused Fichter of acting arbitrarily.

ROCKETS FIRED 65 MILES INTO SPACE

NEW YORK, July 26—Rockets fired from the deck of a U. S. Navy surface ship have soared up to altitudes of more than 65 miles and have provided data about cosmic ray intensity, Third Naval district headquarters said last night.

The rockets were fired from the U. S. S. Norton Sound, a tender fitted out specially to study the launching of guided missiles at sea. The firing was done as the ship cruised 700 miles off the west coast of South America.

Recordings were taken at high altitudes by telemetering equipment carried in the rockets.

The rockets fired were pencil-shaped aerobics, a missile type developed for the Navy by the Aerojet Corporation of Azusa, Calif.

Ship Rams Small Boat, Killing 1, Injuring 19

BOSTON, July 26—(AP)—The coast Guard today probed a crash in which a freighter sliced a pleasure boat in two, leaving one dead and 19 injured strewn on harbor waters.

Mrs. Mary Di Giovanni, 42, of Waltham, a passenger on the 38-foot cabin cruiser Marie S., was killed. The craft was chopped in two by the bow of the United States Lines' American Veteran, inbound from Philadelphia.

Witnesses said both were headed up the main ship channel in perfect weather at the time of the collision.

Thousands of Sunday excursionists watched as their vessels helped rescue the 20 Marie S. passengers and crew, tossed in a dazed condition in the big ship's boiling wake.

Coast Guard, Navy, police and private craft combined in prompt efforts which probably averted a major disaster. Only the bow of the Marie S. remained afloat.

G. B. Shaw Marks 93 Birthday Today

By ROBERT MUSEL
AYOT (ST. LAWRENCE, England, July 26—(UP)—Friends of George Bernard Shaw, who is 93 today, said today the famous playwright is getting younger every year.

They said the old man looked better today than he did at 90. Even his doctor, who visited him a few days ago, marveled at the clarity and sparkle of his aged eyes and his general health.

Shaw pretends that he pays little attention to his condition, but he actually takes exceedingly good care of himself. Only a year ago or so ago, he felt ill and announced to friends that he was going to die. He made such an astonishing recovery that he is in better shape now than he has been since he was as young as 85.

He stays up as late as possible nights—sometimes after 1 a. m. His housekeeper-nurse, Mrs. Alice Leden, has to scold him about this practice. He bounds out of bed at about 7 a. m. and hurries downstairs with the appetite of an aesthetic longshoreman.

Everybody is excited about Shaw's birthday except Shaw. In the big red-brick Victorian mansion called "Shaw's Corners," he sipped one day's ration of milk and practiced the bearded scowls with which he likes to frighten his fans, especially American tourists.

He chomped through a husky, tenderly vegetarian lunch, and thoughtfully arranged the manuscript of his latest work. It is a history and description of his little village partly in verse. Shaw took all the photographs for the book himself.

Shaw is looking forward to the premiere of his new play "Boy-and-Billions" at the Malvern festival, Aug. 13. It is his first new play since the war, and, according to Shaw, the only play ever written for actual production by a man over 90.

He picked the star of the play himself. She is sexy, blond Frances Day, an American chorus girl, who has become a musical comedy favorite in England.

Aid For Airports

WASHINGTON, July 26—(AP)—President Truman today signed a bill permitting the government to put up 10 per cent more money for local airports in cases where cost exceeds estimates.

The House commerce committee said present law holds governments grants to the figure originally agreed on even when costs run higher than expected.

WARREN, July 26—William Cramer of Vinton, Pa., complained to police his car was stolen here yesterday. His watchdog, he added, was in the car and is also missing.

Present Building In 1859

As the work grew it was decided to build a larger edifice on the same site, thus the present building was erected in 1859. In that same year another strip of ground was donated by Isaac Phillips for horse sheds.

BARUCH

materials and manufactured goods.

Holland and Belgium appear to Baruch to be making the most progress. But they, too are not working to full capacity.

In contrast, Baruch feels that American workmen and business are being taxed heavily to permit Europeans to continue to evade hard work demanded by a serious situation in which they have been engulfed by the drains of war years.

Baruch is not opposed to peoples like the English adopting socialism, if that is what they want, but he holds that American loans should be secured and that further grants are unsecurable against industries which have become nationalized.

Says War Can Be Averted

Baruch believes that a war with Russia can be averted. He says the policy to be formulated by John J. McCloy, U. S. military governor and high-commissioner-designate to Germany, concerning the future of Germany will determine the question of peace with Russia.

Baruch believes that McCloy is an exceptionally able official and he is optimistic of the future in this respect because he feels that up until now America has not had a German policy.

From his experience with the Atomic commission Baruch does not believe Russia has got the atom bomb or the knowledge to make one.

Baruch also declares that Russia does not own the satellite nations and knows that all would revolt in event of war.

Russia, in his opinion, has not sufficient troops to maintain both satellite control and carry on a war.

Radio Prices Cut

PITTSBURGH, July 26—(AP)—Price reductions of from $5 to $200 on 16 radio models were announced today by Westinghouse Electric Corp.

The reduction are effective immediately throughout the nation. The largest reduction is on an AM-FM shortwave-phonograph console. Its price was reduced from $499.95 to $299.95.

Jack rabbits can leap at speeds of 30 to 35 miles an hour when frightened.
